Partnership Outreach Emails – CA Firms + MSPs + Dev Agencies

Purpose: Build a referral pipeline for month 2-3 while executing direct outreach in month 1.

Why this works: CA firms see every cloud bill during year-end audit. MSPs deploy AWS but lack FinOps depth. Boutique dev agencies ship to AWS but don't optimize cost. Every one of these has clients who need what we sell – and none of them compete with us directly.

Referral structure we're offering: - 10% of first-engagement fee (4K on a 40K first-customer deal; 7.5K on a standard QuickStart; scales up) - 5% of gain-share for 12 months (real upside if client converts to retainer) - Partner does zero work – we sign our own SOW, deliver, invoice directly - Transparent ledger: monthly statement of pipeline + paid + outstanding

Email 1 – CA firm (accounting / audit)

Target: CA firms with Indian tech-startup client base. Bangalore / Mumbai / Delhi / Pune / Hyderabad.

Find via: - ICAI directory → filter by city + size - LinkedIn (once unblocked): "CA firm Indian startups" + "FinOps" - Tax professionals speaking at startup events – via Inc42, YourStory, Moneycontrol

Subject: Referral partnership for your tech startup clients – 10% on cloud cost work

Body:

Hi {firstname},

Found you through {source – e.g., "your firm's partner listing on ICAI", "your speaking slot at {event}", "a mutual contact – {name}"}.

Short introduction: I run a founder-led cloud cost consultancy called AICloudStrategist out of Delhi. We help Indian SMBs and mid-market tech companies cut AWS / Azure / GCP bills 20-30% in about four weeks.

The reason I'm writing: your tech-startup clients are likely the ones most in need of this, but it's not a scope most CA firms want to own in-house (different skill domain). So I'd like to propose a referral partnership.

The structure:

- You introduce us to a client who fits the profile (monthly cloud spend 5L+, growing 30%+ YoY)
- We do a free 30-minute Cloud Cost Health Check – no obligation to client, no cost to you
- If they engage us (75K QuickStart typical, 40K first-customer pricing through May), you get:
 - 10% of the engagement fee
 - 5% of any gain-share savings for 12 months
- Clean monthly ledger, statement + payment via NEFT or cheque

No client-side friction: we sign our own SOW, deliver, invoice directly. You're just the trusted introducer.

Why this matters for your relationship with the client:

- They save 20-30% on a line item their CFO is probably already asking about
- You're the person who brought them the solution – reinforces your role as their strategic advisor
- At year-end, the savings show up in their P&L – you look good too

Happy to have a 15-minute call whenever works to walk through this in more detail. Or if you'd prefer to see our work first – our blog at aicloudstrategist.com/blog.html has 11 detailed case-pattern writeups, all INR-first, no gates.

Thanks for considering.

Follow-up 10 days later if no reply:

Hi {firstname},

Following up on the referral partnership note from last week. Realise CA firms get a lot of inbound like this.

One specific reason to reconsider: we're currently in a first-customer window – 50% off our standard engagement for the first 3 Indian companies to sign by 15 May 2026. Named case study in exchange for the discount. If you have a client who could use that deal, I'd genuinely prefer they come via your introduction rather than our cold outreach – better trust signal either way.

Happy to stay quiet if this isn't a fit.

Email 2 – Managed Service Provider (MSP)

Target: Small-to-mid Indian MSPs (5-50 engineers) that resell AWS but don't have FinOps depth. Often have clients bleeding money on their recommendations.

Find via: - AWS Partner Network directory: partners.amazonaws.com/search (filter: India + Consulting + Select-tier-and-below) - Clutch.co / GoodFirms / The Manifest – “AWS Consulting India” - Google: “AWS managed services India”

Subject: Quick idea: FinOps layer on top of your AWS MSP practice

Body:

Hi {firstname},

Saw your firm in the AWS Partner Network directory – you're doing AWS managed services out of {city} for {rough-client-profile-if-knowable}.

I run a founder-led cloud cost consultancy (AICloudStrategist). We're a FinOps-specific practice – we don't compete with AWS managed services, we sit on top of them. Most MSPs we talk to have the same pattern: clients whose bills are growing faster than expected, and a request for "can you optimize this" that doesn't fit the MSP retainer model cleanly.

Proposal: a co-sell / referral partnership.

- You identify clients with monthly AWS spend >5L where cost is surfacing as a concern
- You introduce us for a free Cloud Cost Health Check
- If they engage us, you get 10% of the engagement fee + 5% of gain-share for 12 months
- We deliver, invoice client directly, keep you looped in on findings so you can execute the infra changes

Why this works for you:

- Your client gets a problem solved that didn't fit cleanly into your retainer
- You're the one who brought the solution – strengthens client relationship
- Referral fee covers the 30 min of introduction effort
- Our findings often translate into additional infrastructure work for your team (rightsizing, migration, automation) – we hand those off, you execute

Happy to hop on a 15-minute call to walk through the structure, or send over the partner agreement if you'd rather review async.

Email 3 – Boutique dev agency / system integrator

Target: Small dev shops (5-30 engineers) that ship client products to AWS / Azure. Often good at building but leave cost optimisation on the table.

Find via: - Clutch.co top-rated Indian dev agencies - Toptal / Turing network - LinkedIn (once unblocked):

"CEO dev agency India" - ProductHunt – hunters/makers with Indian agencies - YC India alum dev agencies

Subject: Your clients are on AWS – we're the FinOps layer, partnership idea inside

Body:

Hi {firstname},

Came across {agency name} via {source – Clutch rating, case study, blog post}.

Short context: you build and ship products for clients, and those products run on AWS. The cost of that infrastructure usually becomes the client's problem 6-12 months post-launch, when the bill has grown 3-5x and nobody has a FinOps practice in place.

That's the gap we fill. I run a founder-led cloud cost consultancy called AICloudStrategist out of Delhi. Two-week engagements, 20-30% verified savings, INR-first pricing.

I'd like to propose a referral partnership:

- When a client of yours hits the "our AWS bill is too high" moment, you introduce us
- We do the free Cloud Cost Health Check + (if engaged) a fixed-price 75K or 40K first-customer QuickStart
- You get 10% of engagement fee + 5% of any gain-share for 12 months
- Client gets 20-30% off their monthly bill
- You strengthen the relationship with a proactive solution

This doesn't compete with your work – we only touch cost, not architecture or build. Often our findings turn into additional work for your team (infrastructure changes, Terraform modules, automation) which we hand to you to execute.

Happy to send over the partner agreement or jump on a 15-min call. aicloudstrategist.com/blog.html has 11 case-pattern writeups if you'd prefer to see the work first.

Thanks for considering.

Email 4 – AWS Heroes / AWS Community Builders (India)

Target: Indian AWS community leaders – AWS Heroes program + AWS Community Builders. These people influence purchasing decisions and often mentor startup CTOs.

Find via: - <https://aws.amazon.com/developer/community/heroes/> (filter India) - <https://aws.amazon.com/developer/community/community-builders/> (filter India) - Twitter/X: search for "AWS Community Builder India"

Subject: Huge fan of your work on {specific post/talk} – quick FinOps idea

Body:

Hi {firstname},

Big fan of {specific piece of their work – don't fake this}. Your writeup on {specific topic} actually influenced how I frame {specific thing} in my own practice.

Quick intro: I run a founder-led FinOps consultancy (AICloudStrategist) focused on Indian mid-market. We've been writing up cost-pattern findings publicly for the last six months – 11 posts, all INR-first, all practitioner notes (aicloudstrategist.com/blog.html).

Two reasons I'm writing:

1. If you ever encounter an Indian startup / mid-market company struggling with AWS cost, I'd love for you to point them at us. No formal partnership needed – I'd just send them a free Cloud Cost Health Check, no strings. If you want the more formal version: 10% referral fee on engagement + 5% of any gain-share for 12 months.
2. I'd love to learn from you. Would you be open to a 20-minute call where I share what patterns I'm seeing in Indian FinOps accounts and ask your read on a couple of strategic questions? No pitch, no sales.

Thanks for everything you share with the community.

Target list to build (Day 2-3)

10 initial targets to enrich with names + emails:

CA firms with tech-startup focus (5)

1. Pathak H. D. & Associates (Mumbai) – covers startups
2. Nangia Andersen (Delhi) – tech focus
3. ASA & Associates (multi-city) – cross-border + tech
4. RSM India (multi-city) – mid-market
5. Walker Chandiok & Co / Grant Thornton Bharat (multi-city) – tech audit practice

Small-to-mid MSPs (3)

1. Ameex Technologies (Mumbai) – AWS + consulting
2. Smartek21 (Bangalore) – AWS MSP
3. HazerCloud (Bangalore) – AWS FinOps messaging

Boutique dev agencies (2)

1. Hashedin by Deloitte (Bangalore) – mid-size
2. Gojek Engineering / similar Indian product-dev shops

For each: find the founder or BD head email, personalise first line, send email 1 above.

Target: 10 partner emails sent by Day 5. Expect 2-3 replies. 1 converted partnership by Day 20 would be a win.

Referral tracking

For each partner that replies positively, create a tracker task:

vk add 7 "Partner: {firm name} – referral agreement" "First contact {date}. Next step: {call / send agreement / client intro}."

vk label <task_id> rajiv-owns

vk prio <task_id> 3

When a referral arrives via a partner:

vk add 7 "Referral from {partner}: {client} considering QuickStart" "Introduction date: {date}. Notes: {context

vk label <task_id> waiting-on-anushka

vk prio <task_id> 5

Partner agreement template

Keep simple. One-page Master Referral Agreement with:

1. Scope: Partner refers opportunities; AICloudStrategist delivers and invoices directly.
2. Referral fee: 10% of first-engagement fee + 5% of gain-share for 12 months post-engagement.
3. Payment terms: Net 30 from receipt of client payment. Monthly statement of open referrals.
4. Non-solicit: We don't directly pitch their existing clients for 12 months post-referral if referral doesn't convert.
5. Termination: Either party 30 days' notice. Referrals already in pipeline honoured to completion.

Legal cost: 5K one-time via a CA firm or LegalKart to draft. Reusable across every partner.

Action item: Draft the partner agreement as task 85 deliverable.
